Courthouse Offices Undergoing Changes to Improve Public Accessibility

Over the next several months, visitors to the courthouse will notice a number of office relocations taking place throughout the building. These changes are being made as part of an ongoing effort to better serve the public by improving accessibility and making courthouse services easier to locate and access for residents conducting business in person.

As part of these updates, Emergency Management has relocated across the street to the Government Services Center in Suite 311. The Hawk Creek Watershed Project will remain in the courthouse but relocate across the hallway to the office formerly occupied by Emergency Management (Suite 104). In addition, Driver and Vehicle Services will move to the first floor of the Courthouse to the former location of the Hawk Creek Watershed Project (Suite 103).

These office adjustments are intended to create a more convenient and accessible experience for the public while improving the overall flow of services within the courthouse.

Please note that additional office changes may take place in the future as improvements continue. Residents are encouraged to keep an eye out for future notifications and updates regarding office locations and Renville County services.

Children in Renville County need you.

Help a child for a short time, make a difference for life.

Become a foster parent.

Minnesota needs foster parents, ideally people children know and feel comfortable with. When that's not possible, we rely on other local foster families to keep children connected to communities.

You have what it takes.

Being a foster parent can be challenging and requires heart, patience and collaboration. Children and youth need families who help preserve healthy relationships, honor and affirm their culture, and support opportunities for emotional and developmental growth.

Learn to become a foster parent.

Renville County Parks and EDA Partnered to Host Fifth Annual Outdoor Education Day for Students

The Renville County Parks and EDA Departments, along with an Education Day Planning Committee, hosted the fifth annual Renville County Parks Outdoor Education Day on Wednesday, May 6, 2026 at Birch Coulee County Park.

The goal of this event is to expose students to the Renville County Park system and outdoor activities available locally, while educating them on a variety of environmental, health, and safety topics in a fun setting. Like the volunteer t-shirts said, not all classrooms have four walls!

Photo: Hawk Creek Watershed used a stream table to help show how rivers and streams form in our landscape and change in response to water flow.

All Renville County school districts were invited to participate and there were approximately 102 sixth grade students, teachers, and chaperones in attendance from Buffalo Lake - Hector - Stewart, Renville County West, and St. Mary's School. Students were divided into groups and rotated through the educational booths. They also enjoyed lunch and time exploring the park.

The Committee would like to thank those who donated their time and resources to make this event possible. Thank you to the Danube Fire Department for use of their grill, AgCountry Financial Services for plates and napkins, and the Sheriff's Office for use of their enclosed trailer. The Committee will host this event again next year, with the goal of having all Renville County school districts participate, if able.

Service. Stewardship. Shared Responsibility.

Counties impact daily life in ways often unseen, managing over 45 percent of public roads and 38 percent of bridges, while responding to health crises, housing challenges, and natural disasters. Often behind the scenes, with nearly 38,000 county elected officials and a workforce of 3.6 million public servants, counties are responsible for maintaining key pieces of infrastructure, caring for our physical and mental health, administering our elections, ensuring public safety, strengthening environmental stewardship, and so much more. No two counties are the same. Counties are diverse in structure and size, serving urban, rural, and suburban communities across the country. While organizational structures may vary, all county, parish, and borough governments, and our workers, are on the front lines of delivering vital services to residents.

Renville County SWCD on Soil Health: Nutrient Management

- Submitted by Renville County Soil & Water Conservation District

On the morning of Friday, April 10, the Renville County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) and the Marxen family hosted Soil Health: Nutrient Management on the Marxen Family Farm North of Bird Island. The morning kicked off with Alec Marxen sharing the soil health focused changes they have made on their farm in the last five years. The Marxen family have seen improved soil structure in their fields, and increased wildlife presence. In addition to reduced tillage, cover crops, and a multi-year crop rotation, the Marxens have begun using drones to spray their crops in-season and interseed cover crops into standing crops before harvest.

Next, Joe Ailts of Ailts Agronomy NW Wisconsin, an independent agronomist and hobby farmer, was warmly welcomed by farmers, agronomists, seed dealers, and agency personnel alike. Ailts began his presentation on a hot topic – yield vs profitability in farming. He strongly believes and advises his clients to focus on profitability per acre, even if that means sacrificing some bushels. Joe continued on, explaining that he believes the best way to improve profitability per acre is to build or preserve the soil organic matter in the field. Soil organic matter is directly tied to feeding the soil biology, which you feed by leaving mature crop residues on the soil surface and by providing living crop roots as much as possible throughout the year. Joe even shared some real nutrient data from Alec Marxen's cover crops the fall before and how the nutrient cycle could provide some nutrients back to Alec's cash crop.

Kent Klingbeil of 2K Ag LLC also presented that morning, focusing heavily on using modern technology to improve yield. Kent emphasized that major changes might not be necessary, but minor adjustments to a current plan can end up making a big dollar difference. He also focuses on helping producers create data-driven fertility systems based on profitability while also increasing yield.

To end the morning, Harvest Drone from Northern Minnesota demonstrated their swarm drones on 20 acres of the Marxen's field directly across from their home. As mentioned earlier, the Marxen family has leaned into drone applications that allow them to seed tight spots with precision and in fields that aren't fit to work in due to weather. With a swarm drone, there are multiple drones working in tandem to cover more ground in a timely manner.

The field event provided some deep dives into the nutrient cycle and how to focus return-on-investment on the farm while still utilizing modern practices. The Renville County SWCD is grateful to the Marxen family for hosting a fantastic event and helping drive conservation in Renville County!
